

INCREASE FONT SIZE AA⁺

Posted January 19, 2012

Missing toddler's mom unable to complete polygraph

Trista Reynolds, the mother of 1-year-old Ayla Reynolds, cited an undisclosed medical condition, which prevented her from finishing.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Share      Comment

PORTLAND — The mother of a toddler reported missing from her father's Waterville home a month ago says she was unable to finish a lie detector test because of a medical condition.

Trista Reynolds, the mother of 1-year-old Ayla Reynolds, said in a message posted on a website dedicated to finding the little girl, that she started taking a polygraph test on Wednesday but was told by the test administrator that she could not finish because of the undisclosed condition.

ADDITIONAL PHOTOS

Trista Reynolds, mother of missing 20-month old Ayla Reynolds, speaks with the "Today" show on Dec. 29, 2011. Courtesy of MSNBC.com

RELATED HEADLINES

› Maine lawmakers mull 'Caylee's Law' bills

Search photos available for purchase: Photo Store →

Trista Reynolds said she would be willing to complete the test after treatment by a doctor, but added that investigators were content with the results of the incomplete test.

The toddler's father, Justin DiPietro, previously took a polygraph test but has not released results. The girl's parents do not live together.

READ OR POST COMMENTS

Share    